

Baltanest 2023

11th International Baltic Congress of anaesthesiology and Intensive care
28–30 September 2023, Tartu, Estonia Estonian National Museum

Dear friends from the Baltics and all over the world!

With the greatest pleasure, I am proudly announcing that the 11th Baltic International Congress of Anaesthesiology and Intensive Care will be held in our university town of Tartu, Estonia, on September 28–30, 2023.

Four years have already passed since our last in-person Baltic Congress in Vilnius, Lithuania and I do believe that all of us are eagerly waiting for the biggest event in Baltic anaesthesiology and intensive care along with pain management and emergency medicine.

The congress will be held at the Estonian National Museum, providing the opportunity to have a look at the history of Estonia alongside with scientific discussions. The early autumn paints Tartu in beautiful colours of yellow, orange and red, but the sun is still warm, which gives an opportunity to have nice post-congress walks in our small but historical city.

Tartu has already made and will make many preparations to become the European Capital of Culture in 2024 and I do believe that you will have an unforgettable experience not only from the scientific program, but also the social one.

The program, as it usually does at all Baltic congresses, will review the most important aspects of our specialities, bringing together science and practice to touch the mind and heart of all participants from trainees to the most experienced ones.

Please mark the dates in your calendars and book your flights in good time.

We look forward to welcoming you in the enchanting city of Tartu in 2023.
